Mrs. F. J. Dorsey, who was police man on the Oregon Electric depot during the state fair, is visiting at the home of Mrs. G. E. Freed, at Fruitland, for a week or 10 days. Mr. Freed left during the week for Idaho and on Thursday was at Pendleton. He reports that the garages along the route are filled with broken down automobiles, as the people in that part of the country drive over rough roads as hard and fast as people here do over the paved streets.

Remodeled, repainted and with modern equipment car No. 71 of the Salem Street Railway went on duty this morning as car No. 805. It was remodeled at the car shops at Beaverton and now has a closed vestibule, button signal, folding steps and new Eclipse fenders. The new vestibule cars are designed to eliminate accident hazard from people getting on and off cars before they are stopped. All the Salem cars are being equipped with the new Eclipse

A mock election is being planned to come off soon at Willamette university between the republicans and the democrats, and considerable enthusiasm is being aroused for the respective candidates. Hughes sentiment at the university is said to be gaining in spite of the fact that President Doney is reported to be a democrat.

The Bungalow Christian church, corner of Seventeenth and Court streets, Frank E. Jones, pastor, will hold services Sunday morning Bible school at 10 o'clock, preaching at 11 o'clock on the subject "Byden Bearing." "The Melting Pot." Israel Zangwill's great play on the amalgamation of the races, which was scheduled for Salem last night at the Grand opera house, was not shown. The performance was cancelled when the players arrived in the city and it was found there was no seat sale. Manager Bligh declared their contract broken because they had not sent any advance sheets of advertising paper as he had wired for and consequently there was scarcely any advertising out on the boards. He said he would give the players the proceeds of the entire house if they would play but they refused. At 8 o'clock there were only about 20 seats sold.

Charles Archer, chairman, and Mayor White, Rev. James Elvin, Rev. F. T. Porter and T. G. Bligh are the committee of the Salem Commercial club that will have in hand the entertainment of the 30 boys from California who arrive here Tuesday on a trip over the Northwest. The boys are those who won first prizes in the Agricultural schools extension courses offered in California. They are scheduled to arrive here at 5:30 a. m. and stay until 9:30 a. m. The committee plans to take the boys to Cottage farm, the flax farm at the penitentiary, and the Salem Fruit Union. There are none of these agricultural extension courses for boys in Oregon, so it is said, as the people do not take kindly to them.

WILSON'S RECORD AGAINST HUGHES' PROMISES

(Eugene Daily Guard.) The man of the job deals with realities. The fellow who wants the job deals with theories. The mistakes of the man on the job can be magnified by an inferior workman. The question to decide is whether the house as a whole is well built. It is a great deal easier to find fault, than to perform a real constructive service. Every other man you meet might condemn one man because while driving many tails the hammer slipped from one or two and marred the workwork and yet not one of them put to the test could drive one-half so many nails home without many slips. Here is the constructive record of one man as president of the United States. His work is not to be passed upon by one party. It is to be judged by the American people as a whole. He is entitled to consideration without prejudice. Woodrow Wilson when elected as president of the United States was comparatively unknown. He had been governor of New Jersey and president of Princeton university, but even so the step to the presidency was great. A world war broke out and it was not long until he came to be recognized as the diplomat of nations. During the last few months criticism without end has been hurled at his policies, but as the records stand they show that he has actually accomplished more than all the butchery which has made all Europe run red and left great countries with millions of widows, orphans and cripples. There are few men and women who can not recall the many crises which have confronted the nation during the last two years. They know that within their time no president has been confronted with so many great international problems. They know that with Woodrow Wilson as the head of their government they had a feeling of confidence. His last firm note to Berlin brought a favorable reply. They did not want war. They did not expect war. Somehow they had a feeling that Woodrow Wilson would keep them out of war. He did, and more. He took the control of the federal treasury from Wall street and gave it back to the people. He brought his government and your government a little closer to true government of the people, by the people and for the people. To the man whose vision is not wholly blinded by partisanship, the following record of the administration of Woodrow Wilson as president of the United States is submitted: Federal reserve bank law. Farm loan law. Eight-hour day law. Workmen's compensation law. Child labor law. Anti-injunction law. An inheritance tax law. Railway safety law. Parcel post improved. Postoffice self-supporting. Seaman's welfare law. Tariff revised downward. Agricultural extension law. Non-partisan tariff commission law. Income tax law. Good roads law. Merchant marine law. Anti-trust law strengthened. War risk insurance law. Children's bureau. Law giving president power to retaliate against foreign governments which violate American rights. The nation's first great step in real preparedness to insure continuance of peace. (Paid Adv.)
